“Photographic Composition and the Simple Portrait” is a program designed to examine tips and tricks that allow people to improve their photography whether they use an expensive digital camera, a point and shoot camera, or a cell phone. We will talk about the best ways to “compose” the image inside the viewfinder to better convey the message you want your viewer to see. Also, we’ll examine simple ways to light, pose, and photograph simple portraits of family and friends without the expensive, fancy equipment. Using the methods taught it’s guaranteed to improve your photography.
